assistant director, Wolfgang Vachon

Concordia University, Department of Theatre would like to announce their up-coming production of "The Suicide". This satirical comedy is set in Russia 1927, a time when arrests are made indiscriminately and people disappear without a trace. Semyon Semyonovitch, a Russian every man, tries to fill the emptiness of his life and finds himself besieged by people who want his life for their cause, in a time when "only the dead can say what the living think". Banned in 1932, "The Suicide" has never been published or performed in the former USSR.
